Investment objective

To preserve capital in real (inflation-adjusted) terms over the medium to longer term. Investors should expect low levels of reward and a low correlation to stockmarket behaviour, including modest fluctuations in values.

Risk profile

The strategy is managed in accordance with Dynamic Planner risk profile 3 and is part of their Risk Targeted Managed ('RTM') offering. The strategy's expected volatility is targeted to stay within the assigned Dynamic Planner risk profile's boundaries.

About the Risk Targeted Managed Service

Our Risk Targeted ('RT') Managed Service consists of five actively managed investment growth strategies (Risk Targeted 3-7). Each strategy has a different level of risk and expected return, and are rigorously mapped within the volatility boundaries assigned to specific Dynamic Planner risk profiles (RTM 3-7).

Investment update

February proved to be a mixed month for equity markets with positive returns from the eurozone and Asia but declines in the US and Japanese markets. Returns from most areas of the bond market were positive as growth concerns intensified, particularly in the US. Strong returns from eurozone markets were fuelled by expectations of further rate cuts, but also expectations of increased defence spending and hopes of a possible ceasefire in Ukraine. The UK market also rose in February despite a backdrop of anaemic growth and rising inflation. Nevertheless, concerns regarding the UK's fiscal outlook persist following the announcement of an unexpected increase in defence spending, which has sparked concerns surrounding potential tax increases. The weaker sentiment in the US market was largely driven by trade war concerns as President Trump announced further tariffs on imports. Softer economic data and concerns over the sustainability of earnings from US mega cap tech stocks, notably those exposed to the AI theme, further detracted from returns in the US. Asian markets rose over the month, fuelled by strong returns from Chinese technology stocks. As growth expectations declined, investors turned to more defensive assets and US treasuries performed strongly over the month. Relative strength in the corporate sector meant that corporate bonds also performed well. As expected, the Bank of England cut interest rates by 25 basis points. The weak growth outlook in the eurozone and easing inflation reinforces the expectation of the European Central Bank continuing its dovish stance in 2025. In the US, however, expectations around rate cuts continue to moderate. Despite the current uncertainties over US trade policy we continue to believe that the fundamental backdrop is favourable for risk assets. As such, no changes were made over the month and the strategy remains at the upper end of its corresponding Dynamic Planner risk profile. We maintain an optimistic stance on fixed income assets on the back of further expected rate cuts in most developed markets and continued low default rates across corporate issuers. We are maintaining a commitment to alternative investments, which continue to provide appealing, risk-adjusted returns and lower volatility in periods of market weakness.
